Vegetarian Capsules & Classical Medicines

Vegetarian Capsules

Gurmar

Gurmar stimulates insulin secretion and has blood sugar reducing properties. It blocks sweet taste receptors when applied to tongue in diabetes to remove glycosuria. It deadens taste of sweets & bitter things like quinine (effects lasts for 1 to 2 hours). Besides having these properties, it is a cardiac stimulant and diuretic. Also corrects metabolic activities of liver, kidney & muscles.

Triphala

Triphala is a very effective compound made by mixing equal parts of powder of Embolia Officinalis, Terminalia Belerica & Terminalia Chebula. It is a balanced formula for all body types. When taken in large doses at night, it has cleansing and detoxifying action, when one or two capsules taken with meals, it has a building and rejuvenating effect. When used regularly, it is good for gentle, slow detoxification of the digestive tract and then the deep tissue.

Turmeric

Turmeric is being used in India since time immemorial in religious festivals and as a medicine. Turmeric is an excellent natural antibiotic & intestinal antiseptic. Being rich in iron, it is valuable in anemia. Due to its antiseptic properties it is an effective remedy for chronic cough and throat irritation also.

Arjuna

Arjuna is credited with several therapeutic properties, both in Ayurvedic and Unani Systems. It is considered to be tonic, astringent, cooling and is used in heart diseases, contusions, fractures, ulcers. It is also acrid and credited with styptic, febrifugal and antidiarrhetic properties. It has been considered by the Ayurvedic physicians as well as by the modern practitioners as a cardiac tonic. Vagbhata was the first to prescribe the bark in heart diseases. Later Chakradatta described it as a tonic in heart disease. Bhava Mishra, a Nighantukara recognised the bark as possessing some cooling, cardiogenic, wound healing and intoxicating effects. The bark and preparations made from it are reputed to have a marked stimulant action on the heart even today.

Ashwagandha

Ashwagandha is one of the main herbs for promoting ojas and rejuvenating the body. It is a well known semen promoter and it treats impotency and infertility. It increases physical endurance and improves sexual function. It is used in many general tonics and preparations, such as Chavana Prash. It has amino acids, choline etc. Although considered to be the primary tonic for men, it can be safely used by women for up to one year in cases of general debility & pregnancy. It contains chemical constituents like alkaloids, beta-sitosterol, chlorogenic acid, scopoletin, withaferin etc.

Brahmi

Brahmi represent the creative energy of this Universe. The plant brahmi stands for the ersonified energy of Brahma which induces all creativity specially those of sensory organs in the body. It is the main revitalizing herb for the nerves and the brain cells. It increases intelligence, longevity, circulation in the brain & improves both short term & long term memory; it decreases senility and aging. It fortifies the immune system, both cleansing and feeding it, and strengthens the adrenals. At the same time, it is a powerful blood purifier and is specific for chronic skin diseases, including leprosy and syphilis, as well as eczema and psoriasis. It is valuable in intermittent or periodic fevers, like malaria.

Garlic

Garlic is a powerful rejuvenative herb. It is high in iodine and sulfur. The body converts garlic to alkaline ash in the process of digestion. It is useful in reducing blood cholesterol, removing flatulence and producing hypotension effect. It has fibrinolytic activities i.e. break down of fibrine which lowers cholesterol level. Garlic also decreases serum triglycerides and phospholipid levels and oxides those enzymes which are required for cholesterol production in the body. It is a good remedy for atonic dyspepsia. It is also expectorant and antiseptic. Its allisatin I and allisatin II salts act like strong antibiotics and kill the Tubercular bacilli in sputum or in other parts of the body. It contains the minerals Selenium and Germanium which enhance the beneficial effect of Garlic. S-Ally Cysteine Sulphoxide (allicin); isolated from Garlic dose 200mg/Kg decrease serum lipids, blood glucose and activity of serum enzymes. Garlic has a multifaceted action on the cardiovascular system. It has a strong anti-oxidant activity also.

Amla

Amla is perhaps the single most often mentioned herb in the Caraka Samhita. It has a reputation as a powerful rejuvenating herb. The fruit is reputed to have the highest content of vitamin C of any natural occurring substances in nature. It promotes ojas and the reproductive fluids, and is useful in the treatment of ulcers and hyperacidity.

Neem

Neem has strong antiparasitisc qualities & is a powerful blood purifier. As such it also clears the digestive tract of parasites and toxins. It has a long history of outstanding results for all kinds of skin problems, even leprosy. Neem leaf powder helps to prevent diseases like diabetes and hypertension. It is an excellent antiseptic for the teeth & gums. It is analgesic and antipyretic. It cleans away all foreign and excess tissue, and possesses a supplementary astringent action that promotes healing.
